

A better Gippsland starts with U

No matter where you go you're part of a family in Gippsland. People look out for one another, say hello in the street and feel like they belong.

Many of us have lived here for a lifetime. Others are just getting to know what makes our region special.

And Gippsland continues to grow, adapt and change, so those of us that choose to live here now – and that come after us – can enjoy first class health and education facilities, employment opportunities and the chance to indulge in a range of leisure activities.

Yet we also know that the good things about Gippsland are the result of the initiative and hard work of the people who live here.

People from Gippsland have a long tradition of recognising a good idea and making it happen. In short, we haven't waited for others to make our good ideas happen.

That's the philosophy behind the Gippsland Rotary Centenary House Project.

And supporting this vital project is simple. Just do your day-to-day banking, use the phone or surf the net.

Do your banking, use the phone or surf the net – and a better Gippsland will start with U.

A proud part of the Gippsland community

Bendigo Bank is proud to support the Gippsland Rotary Centenary House Project through its Connected Communities™ Program.

Similar to Community Bank® branches which are based on banking but focussed on community, Connected Communities™ provides communities across Australia with the tools to help them achieve greater success, greater sustainability and greater outcomes.

Supporting Gippsland Rotary Centenary House

Gippsland Rotary Centenary House provides accommodation facilities for the families of patients undergoing cancer treatment and other medical services at Latrobe Regional Hospital.

Centenary House is a supportive and secure 'home away from home' designed to minimise the stress of extended treatment.

But providing this service requires extensive funding – and planned improvements and extensions will require an ongoing source of income. And that's where you come in.

You can help us support and grow Gippsland Rotary Centenary House – and it won't cost you a thing.

It works because it's simple

Bendigo Bank is proud to support the Gippsland Rotary Centenary House Project through its Connected Communities™ Program.

Together with local residents, other businesses, community groups, schools, sporting teams, the old and the young Bendigo Bank is helping to generate regular revenue for Centenary House.

And all you need to do is switch your banking to the Bendigo and your telephone and internet accounts to Bendigo Bank Telco.

In return, Gippsland Rotary Centenary House will receive ongoing income based on the value of your banking business and phone bills.

How? Because your local Bendigo branch will share the revenue it generates from the banking and telco activity opened in your name to support this vital project.

Do your banking at your local Bendigo Bank or Community Bank® branch.

Move your phone and internet accounts to Bendigo Bank Telco.

Clint and Lauren

Clint and Lauren's yearly business, home and internet bills of $13,400 will generate an annual income of $350 for Gippsland Rotary Centenary House.

100 couples like them, and Centenary House earns $35,000 per year.

John and Pam

John and Pam have an existing $200,000 mortgage with Bendigo Bank. They tag their account to support the Centenary House project. As a result $100 per year is credited to the Centenary House account.

If another 100 people do this, Centenary House will receive $10,000 per year.

Kerry and Glen

To support Centenary House Kerry and Glen move their $200,000 mortgage and $50,000 term deposit to the Bendigo. They're pleased to know that Centenary House is receiving an extra $300 per year.

Another 100 couples like them and Centenary House earns $30,000 Per year.
